GC Steel to change leaders Swanson retires, replaced by Beall

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Granite City Steel's top management position will be filled by Midwest Steel's top manager on April 1, the company announced Wednesday.

Kemp Beall, vice president and manager of Midwest, will replace Bill Swanson, who has announced his retirement. Swanson has been vice president and general manager at Granite City Steel since 1984.

Both Granite City Steel and Midwest Steel are divisions of National Steel Corp., which is based in Pittsburgh. Midwest Steel is located at Portage, Ind., just outside Chicago.

National Steel President K. Hagiwara announced the change in an internal memo dated March 13.

According to the memo, Beall will be replaced by William "Hank" Sangster, who has been assistant general manager at Granite City Steel since 1986.

Beall began his career with National Steel as a mechanical maintenance trainee at the Tin Mill in Weirton, W.Va. He was assigned to Midwest in 1960 and has held key positions in maintenance, operations and production. Beall has a degree in mechanical engineering from Carnegie Institute of Technology and has done postgraduate studies at Purdue University.

Swanson, 60, joined National Steel in 1960 as a design engineer with Stran Steel in Houston and transferred to the Research and Development Division of National Steel in 1963. He has held key positions in both Research and Development and at Granite City Steel.

Sangster joined Granite City Steel as a mechanical engineer in 1970 and has held key positions in engineering and operations at Granite City Steel. He has a degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Missouri.

According to National Steel spokesmen, Bob Earl will be assigned as acting assistant general manager at Midwest Steel, reporting directly to Sangster, as part of the management transition. Earl has been with Midwest since 1961 and has worked in production, planning/control, customer service, operations and human resources.

Earl has an industrial management degree from Purdue and a master of business administration from Notre Dame.

Granite City Steel employs approximately 3,500 people throughout its 1,540-acre complex in Granite City.

Installation of its second continuous caster later this year will make it the first in the United States to produce all its steel through continuous casting.

A major U.S. Steel producer for the better part of a century, it was founded by the Niedringhaus brothers from Germany who, in the 1850s, introduced Graniteware — household ironware with a speckled enamel that used granite as a key ingredient.

When their source of sheet iron, a Welsh steel mill, burned down in the 1870s, the brothers built their own mill — the Granite Iron Rolling Mills in 1878.

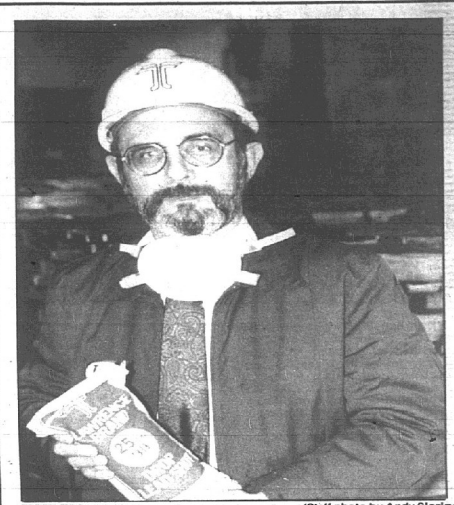

This company became Granite City Steel Works in 1894 and a division of National Steel in 1971.

In 1984, National Steel became a joint venture of National Intergroup Inc. and Nippon Kokan, a leading Japanese steel producer.

Granite City Steel is a major supplier of flat rolled carbon sheet steel products used for tubing, pipe, automotive, appliance and construction applications.

It also produces galvanized steel roofing and siding under the names of Strongbarn, Strongbarn II, Strongpanel and Strongtrim.

The company has spent more than a half-billion dollars on new technology and capital improvements in the past 10 years.

Lead: Classic question of how safe is safe?

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The amount of risk people are willing to take is becoming a major issue in the local lead contamination controversy.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency wants to spend $25 million of its Superfund money to clean up lead-contaminated soil in Granite City, Madison, Venice and Eagle Park.

Local leaders don't doubt there is lead contamination in the soil around the Taracorp pile at 15th and State streets, but they say the EPA hasn't proven the contamination presents a health hazard great enough to merit the planned cleanup of all soil with a lead level of 500 ppm or greater.

Both government and business favor a cleanup plan proposed by NL Industries, which owned the Taracorp site until 1979; it would limit soil removal to areas where the lead level is 1,000 ppm — the level formerly generally accepted as "safe."

At the present time there is no established "safe" level of lead in either soil or blood.

Pat VanLeeuwen, an EPA toxicologist, said that at 1,000 ppm "we feel the increase in the number of children with more severe effects is going to be significant."

Soil with a lead level of 500 ppm or greater is the lowest level which can be tied to elevated blood-lead levels in studies done in other areas. No comprehensive blood-lead level study has been done in the Taracorp cleanup area.

"It's the classic question: How safe is safe?" said Dr. C. Richard Cothorn, a member of the Science Advisory Board of the EPA in Washington, D.C. "Not that it's an unimportant question. But it depends — would you like to be 90 percent safe, 99 percent safe or 99.9 percent safe?"

Cothorn is a member of an international task force which conducted a major study of lead in soil. He said the study is in its final stages and is scheduled to be released in July.

The results of the study could, and Cothorn said he hopes it will, be applicable to the Taracorp site.

(See LEAD, Page 10A)

Study: How clean is clean?

When it comes to lead in soil, how clean is clean?

Dr. Bobby Wilxon, dean of the College of Sciences at Cleveland University, headed an international conference on that question, sponsored by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and heads up a task force established at that conference to come up with guidelines. The task force's conclusions are due to be released in July.

The following is from the conclusion of a study titled "Lead in Soil: How Clean Is Clean" done in 1986 by Wilxon, then of the University of Missouri-Rolla, and Brian E. Davies of the University of Bradford in West Yorkshire, England:

"Two approaches can be made for identifying a soil lead content which can be associated with a possible health hazard. One relies on the British lead in food regulations which specify a maximum permissible content of 1 microgram/gram (equivalent to parts per million) of fresh weight. Plants growing in soil of more than 1,100 ppm can contain more than 1 ppm fresh weight.

"The second follows from identifying hand-carried lead as an important control of child blood lead. A blood concentration of more than 25 micrograms of lead per deciliter of blood is designated in Great Britain as an alert level. Blood lead concentrations more than 25 micrograms per deciliter can be associated with soil lead contents of 1,000 ppm to 2,000 ppm or more.

"These arguments lead us to suggest that 1,000 ppm (in the soil) would represent a prudent regulatory limit and soils with a lower lead content should be considered as 'clean.'"

Two traffic deaths ruled accidental

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — A coroner's jury ruled "accidental" Wednesday the deaths of two women killed in a multi-vehicle traffic collision last month in Granite City.

Blaine Parron, 50, driver of the car which started the accident, and Frances Adelaide Calhoun, 79, a passenger in the Parron vehicle, were pronounced dead Feb. 13 after the crash at 23rd Street and Madison Avenue.

Sgt. James Reader of the Granite City Police Department said no skid marks were found, so the exact speed of the 1985 Renault Alliance auto Parron was driving could not be measured.

He said witnesses told police the car was traveling at a high rate of speed as it approached the intersection and that it appeared the driver was unaware until the very last moment that cars were stopped for a red light at the intersection.

Oakmont Plaza TIF creation step closer

By Valerie Evenden

PONTON BEACH — Preliminary steps are being taken toward creation of a proposed Tax Increment Financing Redevelopment District in the Oakmont Plaza Shopping Center area.

The project's initial phase should be completed in about a month, said Thomas Wobbe, director of planning for the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission.

The new TIF district focuses on the shopping center in the 4000 block of Pontoon Road. The center had been vacant for several years but currently houses the village's library in one area and a center that fights drug and alcohol abuse problems.

Man sues brother after shooting

GRANITE CITY — A Granite City man is suing his brother who accidentally shot him in the abdomen with a 9mm handgun in May 1988.

Ronald Dailly, 21, filed suit Feb. 20 in Madison County Circuit Court against his 24-year-old brother, Richard Dailly, also of Granite City. The lawsuit seeks damages in excess of $15,000.

Ronald Motil, attorney for Ronald Dailly, said the shooting was "in no way intentional" and was strictly an accident.

"But it was an accident caused by Richard Dailly and his careless and negligent handling of the gun," Motil alleged. Motil said the bullet entered in the stomach area, damaged the kidneys, broke a rib and struck the spine.

The injuries caused Ronald Dailly to run up medical bills "in excess of $40,000, all of which remain outstanding," according to Motil.

Motil said the suit seeks payment for those bills and also for Ronald Dailly's mental suffering.

Operation Safe Street delayed

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The city has delayed the Operation Safe Street portion of the East Granite Revitalization Program indefinitely, Mayor Von Dee Cruse announced Tuesday.

Cruse said the rest of the program, including home rehabilitation, demolition of Webster School and replacement of the school with a neighborhood park, will proceed on schedule.

After consultation with the six aldermen who represent portions of East Granite, Cruse said, he concluded the residents had not been sufficiently informed about the Safe Street program, and decided a delay was necessary.

The Safe Street program, used extensively in St. Louis, is designed to reduce nonresident traffic through a neighborhood — traffic caused by people using its streets as a shortcut, according to Economic Development Director Alan Orbital.

He said traffic reduction is achieved by altering traffic patterns, blocking some streets, creating cul-de-sacs, or arranging one-way streets.

The goal of a Safe Street program, Orbital said, is to provide safer, quieter neighborhood streets, decrease crime and create stronger neighborhood spirit.

He said the East Granite plan had basically consisted of a series of one-way streets.

Cruse said the program has not been killed, only delayed.

"It's our fault," he said. "We have not been able to adequately explain the benefits of the Safe Street program."

"I think if people realized what it can do for them, for the safety of their homes and families, for the value of their property, they would want to give it a try."

The East Granite plan calls for the city to concentrate efforts and Community Development funds on the rehabilitation of a single neighborhood for one year, with the goal of a complete revitalization. East Granite was chosen for a pilot program which is expected to be used later in other city neighborhoods.

In other areas of the program, Cruse said, demolition bids for Webster School are scheduled to be opened and an ordinance creating a position of neighborhood improvement coordinator is expected to gain final approval at the next City Council meeting on March 21.

Orbital has begun interviewing applicants for the position and a coordinator is expected to be hired by April 1.

Planting of street trees in the neighborhood is expected to begin later this spring.

State budget plan would permit 3% SIUE raises

By Dennis McMurray
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James Thompson's proposed 1990-91 budget includes faculty and staff raises at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The increase in the SIUE operating budget from $66 million to $67.3 million next year would allow 3 percent raises.

Thompson's spending plan outlined before the Legislature also calls for funding of equipment at the art and design building and consolidation of the music department.

SIUE Vice President and Provost Dean Werner said the funding for pay raises would be discouraging to faculty and staff. The 3 percent increases would fall short of the anticipated rate of inflation, Werner said.

Raises this year amounted to about 9 percent, Werner added.

Thompson's budget proposal did not include money for new academic programs or cost increases due to inflation.

University officials had hoped to add several programs next year, including new degrees in engineering and nursing, Werner said. They also wanted money to improve undergraduate teaching and to attract and keep minority students, he said.

Several building projects requested for the Edwardsville campus, including a new Engineering Building and rehabilitation of the underground utility system were not included in the governor's budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Thompson proposed $585,200 to buy equipment for a new art and design building. The money would be in addition to $5,048,300 in building construction funds approved by the Legislature last summer.

SIUE officials said they hope groundbreaking will be this spring. The art and design department has operated for several years in the Wagner Complex, which is part of the century-old former N.O. Nelson factory in Edwardsville's Leclair area.

The governor also proposed an additional $1.3 million to consolidate the music department in the Communications Building. The Legislature appropriated $3.5 million last spring for the project, which includes renovation of the Lovejoy Library. None of the money has been released yet.

Pond fish sale set for April

The Madison County Soil and Water Conservation District is now taking fish orders for those wanting to restock their ponds. The fish will be delivered to the SWCD office parking lot on Illinois 143 east of Edwardsville on Thursday, April 26, at 2 p.m.

"These are Illinois-grown fish, not shipped in from another state, and our prices are low," a spokesman said.

The fish must be ordered in advance. Available are: channel catfish, 4 to 6 inches, 25 cents, 6 to 8 inches, 35 cents, and 8 to 10 inches, 55 cents; hybrid bluegill, 1 to 2 inches, 45 cents per bag of 250, and 3 to 5 inches, 40 cents; bass, 2 to 3 inches, 45 cents, and 5 to 8 inches, $1; fathead minnows, $7.25 per pound; and triploid grass carp, 8 to 11 inches, $7.25.

Orders for the triploid grass carp must be placed by March 30. Other orders must be placed by April 20.

Orders may be mailed to the Madison County Soil and Water Conservation District, P.O. Box 482, Edwardsville, Ill. 62025 or persons may call the SWCD office at 656-5166 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Coordinator named for Stash the Trash

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

NAMEOKI — The Town Board on Monday night approved Trustee Ken Davis as coordinator of the township's efforts in the Stash the Trash campaign to be sponsored by the Tri-City Area Chamber of Commerce April 21.

Davis asked for groups such as Scout troops, community organizations and churches to contact him with offers to be responsible for particular areas of the township for the annual cleanup and recycling endeavor.

"We've talked about the waste problem for awhile. This program is new because it leans toward recycling," said Davis.

In other business, township officials revealed that the joint lawsuit with Chouteau Township against Granite City and Granite City Township was filed March 9.

"We could well be arguing this case in court next month," said Nameoki town attorney Irv Slate Jr.

The suit questions whether areas annexed by the city of Granite City should automatically become part of Granite City Township as well.

Nameoki and Chouteau officials contend that such properties should remain in the township they are currently in. Granite City officials have said they believe that annexations by the city are mutual annexations, along with Granite City Township.

Dickson Mounds exhibit may close

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Illinois' federal lawmakers have no bones to pick with proposals to close one of the country's last original American Indian burial exhibits at a central Illinois museum.

An American Indian group wants the Dickson Mounds Museum exhibit closed and the skeletal remains placed under the control of the tribes that claim them. It has enlisted the federal government for help.

Gov. James Thompson has also proposed closing the Indian bones display but is now reconsidering the decision. Local officials say the exhibit is essential to tourism in Fulton County near Peoria and gives visitors a better sense of how Indians lived 800 years ago.

But area lawmakers will not take a stand on the issue, claiming it's a matter best resolved at the state level.

"He does not have a position on this," said Ray LaHood, a spokesman for House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel whose district encompasses the exhibit.

"Gov. Thompson is taking care of it," he added.

"Since the Dickson Mounds Museum is a state facility, I am sure that the state officials will be able to resolve the matter with dignity and respect for all parties concerned," echoed U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon.

The Native American Rights Fund has just joined a panel of museum curators and anthropologists in sending a report to Congress recommending a federal law to insure Indian remains are disposed of "in accordance with the wishes of the affiliated cultural group."

So far, legislation has not been introduced, and area lawmakers prefer to stay out of the fray until it has.

"It's out of our jurisdiction; there's no legislation yet, so this is all premature," said a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Lane Evans, D-Rock Island.

Even U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, who won headlines by calling the University of Illinois athletic symbol, Chief Illiniwek, an insensitive portrayal of American Indians, is staying away from this one. "Simon won't take up this issue," said press aide David Carle.

Opened in 1927, the Woodland-Mississippian Indian burial excavation at Dickson Mounds contains the bones of 237 people who lived in the Illinois River valley about 900 to 1,000 years ago. The country's only other original Indian burial site exhibit—in Kentucky—is also slated to be closed.

Although the bones have not been linked to a particular American Indian tribe, the panel's report said remains should be under the jurisdiction of any group that can claim cultural affiliation with them.

Thompson has never visited the site but said he plans to before making a final decision on its closing.

Primary recommendations

The first of the elections of the 1990s is set for Tuesday, March 20, and we urge all eligible voters to participate. It's democracy in action, and it deserves our personal, enlightened involvement.

Most of the competition is set for the general election in November, and even precinct committeeman offices — decided in the spring — have attracted few spirited contests this year.

But the primary nevertheless is important and the results often are pivotal. Many races have been decided by a margin of one or two votes.

Here are our thoughts on local, Madison County and statewide nominations.

COUNTY BOARD DISTRICT 16. The Democratic contenders are Morris Miles, a longtime member and former vice chairman of the board, and Donald Hamilton. We recommend Mr. Miles, the incumbent, who is Chouteau Township supervisor and has extensive county governmental experience in such fields as the environment, solid waste management, personnel, sewers, sewage treatment and health institutions.

COUNTY BOARD DISTRICT 25. The rivals on the Democratic ballot are Donald Rea, the incumbent, and Louis Zeffoff. We endorse Mr. Rea. A balanced-budget advocate during his eight years on the county board, he also has experience and knowledge related to service on the Pontoon Beach Village Board.

COUNTY TREASURER. Treasurer for three four-year terms, Michael "Mick" Henkhaus is opposed in the Democratic primary by Max Shaffer. We favor the incumbent, who has speeded distribution of property tax collections, reduced the size of the office staff and increased investment earnings.

CIRCUIT JUDGE. Appointed to the circuit bench and now seeking the Democratic nomination, Nicholas Byron is running in the primary against Associate Judge Daniel Stack. We recommend Judge Byron on the basis of his service as Madison County state's attorney in the 1970s and as associate judge and circuit judge in the 1980s.

GOVERNOR. Secretary of State Jim Edgar is the clear choice among those seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination. The incumbent, James Thompson, is retiring.

STATE TREASURER. Our preference for the Democratic nomination is Assistant Majority Leader Peg Breslin, whose seven terms in the Illinois House have been used to strengthen the state's economic base.

STATE COMPTROLLER. The Democratic rivals are Sen. Dawn Clark Natchez, a 16-year legislator and the Senate Revenue chairman, who proposes to work closely with financially-troubled cities, and Rep. Woody Bowman, an economist, a 14-year lawmaker and the House Appropriations chairman for eight years. Both are highly qualified for the comptroller office. We lean toward Bowman.

'Yes' on library proposals

The March 20 library election enables Granite Citizens to form a separate library district, with no increase in the present library tax that they pay.

Also, if both municipal voters and unincorporated area voters approve, the proposed new district would serve all of the School District 9 territory except where there are existing libraries, in Pontoon Beach and Madison.

The already comprehensive library program could be further improved if there is public approval.

And for a reasonable 29.7-cent tax rate, unincorporated area voters could do their families a big favor; library access is of extreme importance, especially at a time when America's schools and employers are going to have to emphasize higher achievement to keep pace in an intensely-competitive world.

'Yes' on Mitchell fire tax

Mitchell Fire Protection District voters will decide Tuesday whether to add 10 cents to that district's current tax rate limit of 30 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation.

In view of the district's long and solid record of firefighting effectiveness, its establishment of a second fire station and its need for a new pumper/tanker truck, the request for greater financial flexibility seems valid.

Leave truth to the children

It came time to write a column this week and this writer's mind was nowhere to be found. So what better way to take care of the situation than call in a substitute?

After all, Bill Keane has done it for years. His "Family Circus" cartoon is periodically drawn by son Billy. Now, Bill's a good cartoonist, popular enough to be known by just about everybody who has picked up the funny pages in the last quarter century. But son Billy adds a touch of "kid class" four or five times a year.

So, if a man and boy can do it with pictures, then why, this word smith figures, can't man and boy do it with words?

Hence, my "guest" of the week, the 8-year-old denizen who runs my home.

The following is the result of a school assignment, something like "Say No to Drugs." I've written many essays on drug use in the last 10 years, but none with quite this perspective.

Excuse the spelling. And the grammar could stand some work. I left everything just the way it was. But I think the point is a valuable one, for kids from 8 to 88.

It's funny how children put things in perspective for adults. We've spent millions of dollars on educational campaigns, and still watched the drug problem grow rampant. Then we watch in amazement as our children provide the most profound statements of them all.

Herewith: my guest.

Why We Shouldn't Use Drugs
"Do not use drugs. Because they could hurt you for life. Or worse. If you had very good luck it would turn to very bad luck. If you use drugs some kids might think it's cool but not me. I think it's dumb. All drug users don't live very long. Smoking marijuana is very bad for your lungs. If you use crack it could damage your brain. And you would not think very well. And get F's on your papers."

Sincerely,
Robbie Grubaugh, 3rd Grade.

So this is what they're teaching in school these days? Yes, and I'm darn proud of it.

Quinn as treasurer would curb pension abuses

To the editor:

I wonder how many people would like to give themselves a pay raise or an increase in their pension and not have to worry about where the extra money is going to come from.

Well, all of us regular taxpayers don't have that opportunity but our "professional legislators" do; they also have the power to vote, as they did last year to increase our taxes to pay for House.

We, as taxpayers, now have the chance to vote for someone who, for over a decade, has fought for the people and not the politicians.

Pat Quinn and the statewide Coalition for Political Honesty (CPH) stood up for consumers in the fight to create the statewide Citizens Utility Board which now, with 150,000 members, gives us a watchdog and ally against unfair rate hikes.

Just this year Quinn successfully led the fight to block the unconstitutional pay raise and pension grab by Gov. Thompson and the crowd. But he didn't stop there.

As a Democratic candidate for state treasurer, Pat has proposed to reform the pension system and limit the amount of pension that legislators, judges, the governor and other state officials receive — so that their pension truly reflects their service to the state.

Quinn has always stood up for us. Unlike his opponent, Pat refuses campaign contributions from utility companies, banks, and other special interest groups that would like to get their hands on the state treasurer and our money.

We have a rare opportunity to elect someone who knows taxpayers, who knows consumers, and who knows the economics that are important to us.

This is our chance. Let's stand up for ourselves and our families on March 20 and vote for Pat Quinn as state treasurer.

President, Illinois Consumers and Taxpayers Together (CATT)

Tax 'relief' proposals designed to deceive public

To the editor:

Chicanery: the use of clever but tricky talk or action to deceive, evade, etc.

The current hype being heaped on the Illinois public by "tax and tax" big spenders — pushing for income taxes to give relief from property taxes — is pure, outright chicanery.

What sort of honesty permits them to promise property owners tax relief by lowering property taxes while at the same time increasing the income tax of the same people a lot more?

Why all the effort and expense to feed this hype to the over-taxed citizenry?

Well, think about this: The Tax Foundation reports that a typical moderate-income family, two workers and two children, combined weekly wages of $865, will pay nearly $250 a week in federal levies during 1990.

That includes both the family's direct federal taxes as well as such indirect taxes as Social Security and excise taxes on items ranging from gasoline to beer.

Suppose these typical families were permitted to receive their full pay before tax deductions and to buy at real prices without the added taxes and were required once a week to send a $250 check to the U.S. Treasury.

The revolt against legislators in this country would make the current revolts against the Communist Party in Eastern Europe pale by comparison.

All taxes should be collected locally just as property taxes are now collected, and then distributed upward so citizens could have an opportunity to be aware of exactly how much they are being taxed and for what.

This and the open opportunity for choices of candidates in primary elections of both parties would turn out more honest voters than the chicanery-loaded voter registration bill (HR 2100) just passed in the House or the proposed postcard or telephone registration proposals could ever hope to accomplish.

CECIL MILLER, Edwardsville

Shuttle drivers should be protected by insurance

To the editor:

Each of the shuttle bus drivers has always provided efficient service to area residents to accommodate their traveling needs adequately — besides maintaining promptness, extending courtesy and, especially, being a dependable driver of public transportation along any point within the boundaries of Granite City.

However, of growing concern, as this may incur a haphazard condition if continued, are the single passengers who frequently board, and during transit, request permission of the driver to signal the other shuttle driver to stop, this allows the passenger to disembark and make the transition from one shuttle to another.

That occurred within the Nameoki Village Shopping Center. Also, a passenger was picked up from around that vicinity and stopped the shuttle heading back toward it.

Continuous traffic flow is essential for the welfare and safety of all who traverse busy Granite City intersections.

Being a frequent passenger in a vehicle, I would not like to see someone seriously injured in a traffic accident if it could somehow have been avoided. And if a shuttle bus driver is continuously late on a route, through no fault of his or her own, what follows are the complaints from passengers who have been otherwise patiently waiting for the shuttle to take them to their destination.

The safety of each of the passengers on the shuttles has been of the utmost importance to each of the shuttle bus drivers and every precaution is usually taken on a daily basis.

Driving within Granite City has not been without its haphazard conditions, though the shuttle bus drivers have always done their best.

The vehicles must carry insurance, but what of the shuttle drivers? What if an accident should occur affecting one of these drivers? Shouldn't they be protected also?

Morality is valid issue

To the editor:

I would like to respond to the letter written by the reader who didn't want anyone to impose their "morality" on him.

"Religion is more than 'making money.' Religion is someone's personal belief in God."

Jesus Christ abolished the ceremonial law that the writer referred to in Exodus 21: 22-23, when He died on the cross. Jesus established a moral law through His teachings.

Jesus' moral teachings stand on a far higher plane than the ceremonial (Old Testament) law. He was concerned with the motives and purposes which should rule all our own actions.

"I'm sure that in Biblical times the 'bushy-bodies' were busy at work 'imposing their personal, private morality upon everyone."

It was one of the last instructions to Christ's disciples to teach everyone the lessons taught to them by Christ.

I agree that it is every woman's decision whether or not to abort her unborn child. She alone will be before the judgment seat of Christ.

Byron is couple's top choice

To the editor:

Concerning the primary election on March 20, we believe the voters of Madison County would be very wise to select Nicholas ("Nick") Byron as the Democratic candidate for circuit judge of the 3rd judicial circuit.

Judge Byron has proven to be a very competent, honest and impartial judge with his years of experience on the bench.

So, don't forget to vote March 20 and vote for Judge Byron for circuit judge.

Voting is a privilege. Let's take advantage of it.

B-Day — State kicks butts out of most places July 1

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

On July 1 a new state law goes into effect limiting smoking in public places. Illinois thus joins 42 other states and hundreds of municipalities that have passed laws in recent years governing where one may smoke.

First, it was elevators. Then it was airplanes. At the present rate, some say, it is not impossible that smoking may someday be banned entirely, with possession of tobacco made a crime.

It wouldn't be the first time. Around the turn of the century 14 states outlawed tobacco. It wasn't until World War I that the laws were repealed.

The new Illinois law is causing consternation among business owners and law enforcement officials. They're not sure what it means. The law is vague, as worded.

Called the Clean Indoor Air Act, the law specifically excludes taverns and bowling alleys, hotels and sleeping rooms, factories and warehouses from having to comply with it.

It includes just about everything else open to the public, "including, but not limited to, hospitals, restaurants, retail stores, offices, commercial establishments, elevators, indoor theaters, libraries, art museums, concert halls, public conveyances, educational facilities, nursing homes, auditoriums, arenas and meeting rooms."

The law allows those in charge of such public places to establish designated smoking areas utilizing "existing physical barriers, ventilation systems and other physical elements of the premises to minimize the intrusion of smoke into areas where smoking is not permitted."

In instances where the public area is "a single room or enclosure ... a reasonable portion" may be designated as a smoking area.

One such place is the Pit Stop cafeteria in downtown Granite City. Proprietor Bob Rickert posted a story about the new law and customers were infuriated. Rickert said his business depends on the "coffee and cigarette crowd."

"I make all my money off the coffee. I sell one cup of coffee and it pays for the whole pot. I don't need people coming up and threatening to punch me," he said, referring to an especially irate couple.

"Hey," he told them, "don't blame me, blame the governor." "Anybody who violates the law, be they a smoker or proprietor, can be fined up to $500 if convicted."

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine, while saying he would enforce the law, is not looking forward to doing so.

"I'm not well-coming it," Haine said.

"This is not going to be an easy thing to enforce," he said.

He said he and his staff would be taking a closer look at the law before it goes into effect, and he said the law would be brought up at one of the periodic meetings he has with local law enforcement officials.

Businesses are wrestling with what the new law means to them. While it allows smoking in places not frequented by the public—such as warehouses, factories and enclosed offices—the law appears to prohibit it in other work places such as open offices.

The opinions division of Attorney General Neil Hartigan's office will not issue an opinion on what a law means unless the law is challenged or a state's attorney requests it.

At Granite City Steel, where they have no set policy on smoking at the moment, spokesman Bob Maxwell said departments have been allowed up to now to set their own smoking rules. He said the company would come up with a policy before the law goes into effect July 1.

One smoking white collar worker at Granite City Steel said that, in his department, smoking was outlawed except in private offices. He joked that he had thought about quitting smoking but said he was afraid that if he did—and the department hired another smoker—that person would get his office. He would be booting out with the rest of the people in a large partitioned office.

"I might have to keep smoking to keep my office," he laughed.

East Side Publications, which publishes this newspaper, instituted a no-smoking policy March 7. Smoking is allowed in the composing room, which is off-limits to the public; at one table in the cafeteria; and in a separate room upstairs. The coffee shop, the gift shop and designated smoking lounges on the floors, said spokesman Carol Winters. Effective July 1, there will be smoking only in the cafeteria and coffee shop, she said.

Experts say 25 percent of American adults smoke today, down from 38 percent 30 years ago. But 50 percent of blue collar workers smoke. That should make for special difficulties with enforcement in primarily blue collar Granite City.

In his department, smoking was outlawed except in private offices... "I might have to keep smoking to keep my office."

— A GC Steel worker

This will be an unfamiliar scene in most public places after July 1 in Illinois.

Haine glum on prospect of enforcing vague law

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine says he is not looking forward to having to enforce the smoking law.

The law is vague on such matters as adequate ventilation and physical barriers to shield non-smoking areas from smoking areas and what constitutes an adequate amount of non-smoking areas in single-room enclosures.

Haine said specific definitions of what the new law means will be made "over time by the community."

That means courts. A spokesman for Illinois Attorney General Neil Hartigan said case law will eventually define what the new law means.

"I think we're all going to have to be reasonable," he said. Smokers, he said, will have to respect the law, but non-smokers should realize smokers are suddenly being asked to change a habit of, in some instances, a lifetime.

He noted that smoking has been around for 400 years. "If we can understand that, we can realize it's not going to be eliminated overnight."

"I think we can enforce the law without being onerous or making criminals out of smokers. It's going to take some careful enforcement so we don't have good citizens who smoke pitted against good citizens who don't smoke."

Elusive 'peace dividend' may trap Gephardt, others in quicksand

As he stood before an Arena throng, he was a figure of a commencement speaker. The year was 1985, and I was there because a member of my family was receiving a master's degree from St. Louis U.

Tall, blond and handsome, the graduation speaker, Richard Gephardt, won the crowd's respect with intelligence, wit and polished speaking style.

The St. Louis Democrat was nearly ready to launch what proved to be a long and unsuccessful 1986-88 presidential campaign, in which he stressed ending the foreign trade imbalance.

NOW MAJORITY LEADER of the U.S. House of Representatives, Gephardt occupies a powerful position, only one rung away from Tom Foley's House speaker's chair. Gephardt has ruled out a 1992 presidential race since he is regarded as a possible 1996 contender.

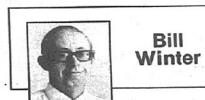

But he may never get to the White House. If he has not been struck by the one March 6, when he proposed direct for-sign aid to Russia. He had lined up support for this plan, and few officials and experts stood up to be counted on his side. It may rank as one of the most unpopular ideas ever advanced by such a high-ranking Washington official.

THE "PEACE DIVIDEND" is what lured Gephardt into suggesting a big financial give-away to our 45-year Cold War enemy. He cited the toppling of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and other evidence that Communism's Iron Curtain is crumbling.

With the Soviet Union focusing on internal problems, and letting conquered countries edge toward freedom, it no longer is as great a threat to world peace, "dividend" advocates say. They urge: Slash U.S. Department of Defense funds and use the savings for peaceful purposes.

Gephardt would spend that dividend to help such countries as Russia. Others stepping into the quicksand of perceived wealth want to use the windfall for schools, the environment and other worthy causes.

A FUNDAMENTAL FLAW is that the peace dividend may not exist. Even if we drastically cut back on defense forces and bases, our federal budget would still be out of balance.

Remember that the budget deficit-reduction law has not achieved a break-even point, much less debt reduction.

Even if we accept all the bookkeeping gimmicks that show budget progress, the deficit is not shrinking. It grows every year. The law for red ink is still red ink, not black.

Uncle Sam continues to out-spend his revenue and the total

Today not 1st time tobacco under fire

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

This is not the first era in American history in which smoking has come under attack. Writing for the benefit of 19th century schoolchildren, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes proclaimed:

"Tobacco is a filthy weed, that from the devil does proceed. It drains your purse, it burns your clothes. And makes a chimney of your nose."

Early in the 20th century, 14 states banned it outright, and 21 other states and territories considered banning it — this in a country in which revolutionary leader George Washington urged southern planters to send tobacco to finance the revolution if they couldn't send money.

Tobacco originated here. Christopher Columbus found

'If this pernicious practice obtains among adult Americans the ruin of the Republic is at hand.'

— A New York Times editorial

Indians who "drank smoke."

A crew member of Columbus' lit up back home in Spain. He was promptly jailed by the Inquisition, which assumed the smoke wafting from his mouth was a thing of the devil.

Four hundred years later, in 1894, the New York Times editorialized, "The decadence of Spain began when the Spaniards adopted cigarettes, and if this pernicious practice obtains among adult Americans the ruin of the Republic is at hand." World War I put an end to the anti-smoking craze. "Tobacco is as indispensable as the daily ration" to the fighting man, declared Gen. John J. "Black Jack" Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force. "We must have thousands of tons of it without delay."

Americans from all walks of life responded. By the time Johnny came marching home, the once disreputable cigarette had become a symbol of courage, decency and the American way. By the late 1920s, the anti-tobacco campaign had sputtered out. Today, of course, it is back full-strength. And so it goes — first your money, then your clothes, as Oliver Wendell Holmes might have said.

ferent than us helping East European countries seeking to gain independence from Russia. Lithuania is already in balking at Lithuanian liberty, and continues to aim an array of nuclear missiles at potential American targets, possibly including St. Louis.

Even though Mikhail Gorbachev is popular in the free world, he is still directing a fifth of his country's gross national product to war preparation and rocket modernization.

IN THE POSTWAR ERA following World War II, America was the most powerful nation on Earth and was responsible for half of the world's gross national product, but times have changed.

If we can no longer support our own federal spending from this nation's relatively efficient productivity, how can we shoulder the burden if we also underwrite the almost laughably inefficient Communist regime, where citizens stand in line for hours only to find little of what they need once they are waited on in Russian stores.

If there ought to be a strong effort to make Communism succeed — and I don't feel there should be — isn't an economic power like Japan in far better shape to provide the funds?

OUR PURPOSE, if you believe national commentators, should not be to help perestroika prevail but to see Communism and dictatorships fail.

Our wish list is to see repression and tyranny end, religion unshackled, political prisoners released, the KGB abolished, the Red Army disbanded, missiles scrapped and the people freed.

Majority Leader Gephardt says a leader's duty is to lead, but doesn't add that the direction is an important factor.

He thinks President George Bush lacks the "vision" to lead our country well. But Gephardt won't convince very many people to give him Bush's job unless he defines his own vision differently than handing our wallets to the Kremlin.

Mark 11:23 "... He shall have whatsoever he saith." Jesus surely wanted to teach us about the power of believing prayer. He said, "Whoever shall say and not doubt, he shall have WHAT SO EVER he saith."

Whoever means YOU! YOU can pray and get results. Jesus said you could. And the more critical your situation, the more amazing the answers to your prayers.

Whoever means exactly that! God can do anything. He can solve your problems. He can heal your body. He can forgive your sins! On and on it goes. Whoever need you have.

Why not try prayer today? Find yourself a quiet place. Bow your head and pray out loud. Talk to God just as you would a friend. You can have what you say. Today.

Library district, boundaries to be decided

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

Voters will decide Tuesday, March 20, whether the Granite City Public Library should become a library district and whether it should serve additional territory.

The enlarged territory would include all the area now encompassed by Granite City Community Unit School District 9 except for a Madison area served by the city library there and all of Pontoon Beach, served by the village library there.

Even with the two exceptions, the expansion would increase the area by several times the current size. The city portion would still account for the bulk of the population.

The first ballot question on Tuesday reads:

"Shall the territory (shown)... be annexed to the Granite City Public Library District, Madison County, Illinois?"

This question asks voters in Granite City and in parts of Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice townships to decide whether areas currently served by School District 9 but not served by the Granite City, Madison or Pontoon Beach public libraries should join a new Granite City library district, receive library services from it and pay the library tax.

The second question reads:

"Shall the public library in the city of Granite City, Madison County, Illinois, be converted to a public library district, with a maximum annual public library tax rate established at 297 percent of the value of all taxable property as equalized and assessed by the Department of Revenue?"

This question asks voters only in the city of Granite City to decide whether the public library will form the legal entity known as a library district. Its formation would make it eligible to serve its own area and an area outside the municipal boundaries of Granite City (if city and rural voters both approve of including the outside area).

If the second question (conversion) passes, a library district will automatically be created, separating it from the city government. If the first question (annexation) also passes in both city and non-city areas, the unincorporated area described will become part of the newly created library district.

For purposes of the annexation election, Granite Citizens' voting will decide the city area's response; the Nameoki-Chouteau-Venice townships' ballots will represent the unincorporated area's wishes.

If the second question (conversion to a district) fails, the result of the first question will be moot, because there would be no district for the adjacent territory to join.

The first question, on whether to annex into a library district if one is created, is a simple majority proposal in Granite City and a simple majority proposal in the unincorporated area; the same rule applies in Granite City to the question of creating a district. That is, if more than 50 percent of eligible voters vote yes, a proposal passes.

The results are not area specific beyond the two large areas, incorporated and unincorporated; one precinct cannot vote yes and get in while another votes no and stays out of the district.

Proponents of the measures contend that the larger district would be better able to serve local residents, including those in the area not currently served by any library.

If the measures pass, a maximum tax rate of 29.7 cents per $100 assessed valuation could be extended on homes and other real estate each year. That figure would amount to $29.70 per year on a $30,000 home assessed at $10,000 (the law requires one-third assessment).

Granite City residents already pay the same rate for library services and that figure would not rise. Only property not in Granite City would see a change in taxes, and in return full library privileges and services would be provided.

Officials also contend that expanding the district would simplify their ability to serve School District 9 students through the bookmobile program. Recently, questions have been raised as to the legality of allowing students living outside Granite City to use the bookmobile when it visits their schools.

Some opponents have expressed concern that the library's board of trustees is currently appointed by the Granite City mayor and that unincorporated area residents might not have equitable representation on the board under the proposed district. But that board would be disbanded and the library district board would be elected district-wide, with all voters served by the district having the right to vote.

Mitchell Fire District tax increase on ballot Tuesday

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

MITCHELL — The Mitchell Fire Protection District is asking voters in the March 20 election to increase its authorized tax rate limit from 30 cents to 40 cents on each $100 assessed valuation.

The 35-square-mile district includes Mitchell and surrounding areas in Chouteau and Edwardsville townships and provides public fire protection services to residents and property owners.

The district has 30 volunteer fire department members and operates two fire stations, one on Chain of Rocks Road and the other on Maryville Road. It currently owns four firefighting vehicles, the newest purchased in 1982.

In 1989, the firefighters responded to 244 calls. The district is governed by an elected three-member board of trustees.

The trustees said the tax limit increase is necessary because the district needs the additional funds the increase would provide. The funds would be utilized to continue the current quality of fire protection service to the residents and property owners.

The trustees said the increase, for a person owning a house with a fair market value of $40,000, would amount to $13.10 a year or about four cents a day.

This is based on a 1989 tax computed from an assessed value of $16,000, or a third of the market value, the current rate of 30 cents, and taking into account the homeowner tax deduction under Senate Bill 1790.

The actual dollar amount of an individual increase would vary based on individual property value.

The Maryville Road station, completed in 1989, was constructed without a tax increase but, according to the trustees, its construction required all of the district's surplus revenue.

In addition, the trustees said, the district needs to acquire a pumper/tanker truck, not only to pump water at a fire but also to carry the larger quantities of water currently needed; these quantities are beyond the capabilities of the existing equipment.

The trustees estimate the cost of a pumper/tanker truck to be in the neighborhood of $175,000 to $225,000.

Revenue from the requested increase is estimated to be $25,000 a year and, according to the trustees, most of it would go toward the purchase of the truck.

AAA coverage doesn't end here.

TO THE VOTERS IN GRANITE CITY

EXPANDING YOUR WORLD

Dear Granite City Neighbor,

In an election to be held on March 20, you will have the opportunity to decide the future course of your library. By law we are not permitted to ask you to vote for or against the propositions. However, we may tell you about the services the library provides and the propositions. We hope this ad will be informative.

As residents of the city, you and your family probably have your library cards. However, many of your neighbors living outside city boundaries may not. Through a Project PLUS demonstration, the library is presently issuing Project PLUS library cards to people living in non-city areas. These cards are valid until June 30, 1990, and are being paid for by a grant from the Illinois State Library, a division of the office of the Secretary of State, using federal funding provided by the library services and construction act. The purpose of the demonstration is to encourage cooperation and to establish an areawide district library.

If you have any additional questions, please visit the main library or call 452-6238 and ask about the election.

Thank you for your interest and consideration.

Sincerely,
The Library Board

What is a district library?

A DISTRICT LIBRARY is an independent unit of local government authorized by the laws of Illinois. A library district is similar to the park district except that a library district can grow beyond the municipal boundaries.

Why is the library board asking for this change?

The Granite City Public Library has always been a leader in providing quality service to its constituents. The members of the board now feel that the changing local environment and circumstances at the state level make the decision to convert to a library district vital for the future of library service in our area.

In addition, many people think it makes sense for the library to be able to provide service to people who live only a short distance from the boundaries of the city. It also makes sense to students to belong to a public library service area that encompasses the same area as the schools they attend. Library district status could help the library respond to the growing number of people living outside the city.

Lastly, the proposed district library will have a greater opportunity to comply with the expectations of the state library and the directives of state library law.

What will the boundaries of the proposed library district be?

If the propositions pass in both the city and outlying areas, the boundaries of the new library district would be the same as the school district boundaries. (Exception: The Village of Pontoon Beach has decided not to participate.)

How will the governance of the Library be changed?

The governing body would be elected by the citizens of the district and be responsible only to the voters within the district, Illinois library standards, and the laws of Illinois. It will be completely independent of city government.

As already stated, a district library is similar to the park district except that a library district can expand beyond the municipal boundaries. It will be directly responsible and answerable to the voters because the library board will be elected directly by the people.

How will the Library's budget change?

The library district would become a separate taxing entity. Its basic rate would be set by the voters at the current rate of 29.7 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, and this basic tax rate could be changed only by permission of the voters. Minor increases for social security and other insurance are permitted; however, major budget increases would be dependent upon the economic development of the area and/or voter approval.

The major advantages of creating a library district are: 1) It takes competition (new library books vs. new street sweeper vs. garbage collection) and guesswork out of the budget process and 2) it provides an opportunity to expand the tax base and to grow with the needs of the area.

Will the quality of library service change for Granite City residents?

District library status should have no effect on the availability of library service to Granite City residents.

What advantages are there for me as a Granite City resident to increase the size of the library's service area?

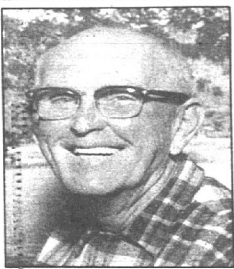

Many, by voting for the creation of a library district, you will allow the library to offer service to areas outside the city, thereby expanding the library's tax base. You will guarantee a basic level of library service regardless of the competition for tax dollars, help reduce the risk of citywide political issues affecting the library, and foster areawide cooperation.

When is the election?

The election will be on March 20. Please be sure to exercise your voting privilege. Regardless of how you choose to vote, be sure to register your opinion. Thank you.

Accident

Witnesses said Parron, who was in the outside southbound lane, swerved to avoid a stopped car in her lane, but clipped the left rear of that vehicle.

The car spun into the northbound intersection and collided head-on with a larger car stopped for the light in the inside northbound lane. The impact pushed the bigger auto 321 feet backward down Madison Avenue. Only minor injuries were reported to passengers in the other two cars.

Reader said neither Parron nor Calhoun was wearing a seat belt.

A family member of Parron's told police that she had been taking prescription phenobarbital for a seizure condition, and that she apparently had not suffered a seizure in some time.

Traces of that drug were found in a toxicology survey during an autopsy on Parron, and were in the proper amounts for a therapeutic dose for a condition like the one her family described. No other drugs were found in her system, a coroner's report indicated.

Parron's cause of death was a transected aorta, the large artery leading to the heart, perhaps from striking the steering wheel during the crash impact. She died to death internally.

Calhoun's cause of death was severe blunt chest trauma, suffered when she struck the car's dashboard during impact. She also suffered a deep cut to her forehead, according to Deputy Coroner Roger Smith, who pronounced both women dead at St. Elizabeth Medical Center following the accident.

Lead

Cothern declined to speculate it it could or should affect the cleanup plan because he said he believes "those decisions should be made as close as possible to the locality they affect."

But "in general, lead is bad for you," he said. "I don't know of anything 100 percent safe."

"...Whether it is going to harm one person in 1,000, or one in 10,000, or one in 100,000 or one in a million all depends on where you draw the line."

Studying the harm caused by trace levels of substances, such as lead, is still a "pretty new business," according to Dr. Bill Lower of the Environmental Trace Substance Research Center at the University of Missouri.

More study is needed, he said, but at the same time thousands more people might be harmed in the time it takes to do more study. So, he said, it isn't always best to wait.

"You want to clean it up," he said. "But at the same time, you only want to clean it up once. At a later date you don't want to find out it wasn't enough."

Cleanup is expensive, Lower said, and if you just start cleaning up every potentially harmful chemical "pretty soon you will be spending the entire Gross National Product on some sort of chemical cleanup."

Establishing permitted levels of a harmful contaminant presents a moral dilemma similar to establishing acceptable human casualty levels in a war, he said.

"It's possible there is a level, an extremely low level, where it's not harmful to anyone," he said.

Pontoon

Anchor area of the revitalized shopping center is to be a new Ralph and Charlie's Restaurant. The original Ralph and Charlie's, located on Fourth Street in Madison, was a popular eating spot until destroyed by fire last June 7.

David Thebeau, owner of the former restaurant, is renovating and refurbishing a 10,000-square-foot area in the shopping center and rebuilding his restaurant there.

Cost of refurbishing the former P.N. Hirsch Store section of the shopping center, which he is turning into the restaurant and a banquet room, was estimated by Thebeau at $300,000.

"There are seven different areas we are looking at in the planning stage and we have completed four areas," Wobbe told Pontoon Village Board members Tuesday night.

"We have yet to get into the financial analysis. The really hard work is still ahead of us," he said.

How bonds will be sold and how much money it will be necessary to generate through the bonds are among the questions yet to be answered, Wobbe said.

"We are not only following the letter of the law, but the intent of the law," Wobbe said. The proposed district qualifies as a "conservation" area, he said.

Carl Hackney, chairman of the village Economic Development Committee, said Wobbe cited the Oakmont Plaza area as a good example of what a TIF district should be, meeting all criteria for a redevelopment area.

A grocery food chain has shown interest in the large open section at the front of the shopping center. In previous years the center housed a Tom-Boy Market, Viviano's Grocery Store and a Schermer's Supermarket, Hackney noted Tuesday.

A furniture company also has talked about possibly locating in the center, Hackney added.

Creation of a TIF district will provide the incentives necessary to private enterprise to acquire and renovate parcels located within the shopping center, Wobbe said.

Despite favorable growth trends in the village, including a 36 percent increase in population between 1970 and 1980, the village has experienced a serious decline in the major commercial district located along Pontoon Road, west of Illinois 111.

The Oakmont Shopping Center once formed the nucleus of a commercial district, but has declined to the point that it is now 80 percent vacant.

Located within the older part of the village, the shopping center could serve as a positive force in strengthening the main activity center and stabilizing a somewhat marginal neighborhood, the preliminary study states.

Seven residential parcels of property, mainly occupied by what are called older and deteriorating residences located on the east side of Long Lake and south of Pontoon Road, form the eastern boundary of the TIF district.

At least 70 percent of the parcels within the district contain structures built before 1965 and many are in disrepair.

The shopping center currently generates no sales tax revenue. The parking lot has not been maintained and contains cracks with grass and weeds.

Storefronts in the shopping area are also in disrepair and in need of renovation, both inside and out, the planners found.

"Cigarette smoking is the most easily prevented known environmentally induced cause of cancer," Lower said. "On any list of harmful pollutants, it's way ahead of anything else."

"As a smoker, what is it worth to you not to quit, knowing you are risking lung cancer, heart disease, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, a stroke and all the other things associated with cigarette smoke? You can probably draw from your own experience the process of deciding the amount of risk you're willing to take."

"On a personal level, this is probably a fair comparison. I suspect there are a number of adults in Granite City who smoke in their homes and are very concerned about the possibility of their children being contaminated by lead."

"But secondary cigarette smoke, especially to children, is proven to be harmful. Where are your values? Do you voice complaints against lead while you've got personal habits that present even more potential harm to your children?"

The Illinois Department of Health has agreed to conduct a blood-lead level study, which it estimates would cost between $100,000 and $150,000, but said the funding must come from somewhere else. Mayor Von Dee Cruse of Granite City and Mayor John Belicoff of Madison have requested that the EPA fund the tests.

Heart walk-athon held here

A Hearts in Motion walk-athon was held at St. Elizabeth Medical Center during Heart Month in February.

"We haven't finished collecting all of the money raised," said walk-athon coordinator Robin Jarrett. "So far, we have $400, but I expect a lot more will come in."

The money will be divided between the American Heart Association and the SEMC Cardiac Emergency Fund, a fund that assists SEMC heart patients with emergency needs.

"I thank everyone who participated in the walk-athon," Jarrett said. "We have a lot of caring and concerned people who use our exercise facilities. I'm glad they can be recognized for their contributions."

The purpose of the sale is to raise funds for the services offered to people who are in need within the Quad City area. The Tri-City Chapter has served many individuals and families over the past year.

A spokesman said, "When a fire occurs, the Red Cross is there; when flooding occurs, the Red Cross is there. And the Tri-City Chapter is called on not only for local disasters, but also to contribute support to such events as Hurricane Hugo and the San Francisco earthquake."

For the March 24 sale, the Tri-City Chapter is accepting donations of books, in any amount.

Books can be dropped off at the Red Cross office, 1909 Delmar Ave., or pickups can be arranged by calling 452-7184.

Festival's absence may hurt fund raising

By Ken Walk
Staff writer

St. Louisans may see a mini-version of the Strassenfest this year, but they would have to go to St. Louis County in August.

Eberhard Gress, founder of the 30-year-old summer street festival, said he and Westport Plaza officials are talking about moving the German celebration there. "The people at Westport Plaza said, 'Whenever you come it's fine with us,'" Gress said.

He said anything at this stage would be a scaled-down version, although he hopes to hold the festival so German tennis pro Steffi Graf can attend as planned. "It would have to be the early part of August at the latest," he said.

Festival organizers got the word in a Feb. 28 meeting with city officials that if they wanted to hold the festival downtown, it would have to be in October and in Kiener Plaza.

Memorial Plaza, across from City Hall and bigger than Kiener, has been hosting the annual festival.

Many Illinois and Missouri groups that raise funds through concession stands are disappointed there may be no 1990 fest.

The festival provides a chance for about 100 non-profit organizations to raise money.

Dick Slickman, a spokesman for Mayor Vincent C. Schoemehl Jr., said Strassenfest organizers were told last year they no longer would be allowed to use Memorial Plaza. He said the festival was approved last year as an exception and organizers were offered help in relocating.

Complaints from neighbors in the Plaza Square Apartments and the damage to the park prompted the decision, he said.

"Nobody said we could no longer have it in the plaza; February is the first time we heard this," Gress said.

In a Jan. 30 letter, Gress said, organizers offered to change the date to the first weekend in August, but felt snubbed because they were denied appointments with Schoemehl and never received a reply from him.

"We need a year of planning to do it right," Gress said.

"Two years ago, Mayor Schoemehl asked me if we couldn't move it from July to October. I explained that volunteers who provide services for the festival take time off from regular jobs and must schedule vacations to coincide with the festival."

Gress also said the German bands that come from around the country, and especially from St. Louis' sister city of Stuttgart, West Germany, cannot visit in October because of commitments to Octoberfest in their home country.

Meet the Banks Family.

In the months ahead you'll find you have a lot in common.

The Banks family is probably a lot like your family. When they all get together, everybody enjoys visiting with everyone else.

But individually, they're at different stages of their lives, with very different needs.

For instance, Maggie and Mort are newlyweds, just starting out, while Milt and Penny Banks are now empty-nesters. Then there's Grandma Ira and Grandma Fanny Mae who have just retired.

Even though each has very different financial needs, they're all happy customers of Magna. That's because we have taken the time to carefully discuss their own specific needs with each family. So they now better understand exactly where they are headed and how we can help them get there.

If it's been a while since you had a serious talk with your banker, maybe you're not banking at the right bank.

Wallace picks OSU

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

Joe Wallace can now concentrate on his senior season.

The Warrior baseball team's star catcher made a verbal commitment Tuesday night to attend Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Okla. The Cowboys are one of the perennial Division I powerhouses.

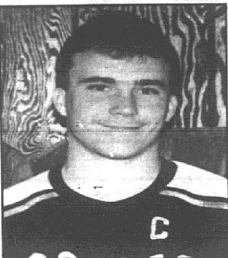

"We talked about it for several hours last night," said Wallace's mother, Debbie Bailey on Wednesday. "Joe wants to play at that level. But it was really hard for him to say no to Southwest Missouri. He hated to make that call, but he had to."

Wallace had visited Southwest Missouri State in February and liked what he saw. But after a visit to OSU last weekend, he made up his mind.

"It's time for Joe to start thinking of himself," said Warrior coach Bob Stegemeier. "This is a great opportunity for him. Of course, he'll have to make a decision if he gets drafted."

Wallace, who batted .337 with four home runs and 26 RBIs and did a fabulous job of catching as a junior, is a good bet to be taken in the major league draft in June. If he signs a contract with the pros he will lose his college eligibility.

Oklahoma State has been to the College World Series 13

Joe Wallace
... says yes to Cowboys

times, including seven years in a row. The Cowboys are off to a 14-0 start this year. Their regular catcher is a junior, but he could get drafted after the season, according to OSU assistant coach Tom Holliday.

"It's a pretty good scholarship," said Bailey. "It's about as good as any they give to a baseball player. We're just glad it's (recruiting) over."

April 11 is the first day to sign a letter of intent for college baseball. More on Wallace and the 1990 Warriors will appear in next week's Press-Record.

Tigers taste Champaign again

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

CARBONDALE — Chris McKinney was out to prove the critics wrong.

All season East St. Louis Lincoln has been considered a one-man team. But while all-star Cuonzo Martin was limited to only three points, McKinney picked up the pace Tuesday with 21 as the Tigers defeated Marion 51-47 in overtime in the Carbondale Class AA Super-Sectional.

McKinney's effort handed Lincoln (20-7) its fifth consecutive trip to the Class AA state tournament. The Tigers will now play Elgin (22-6) in the state quarterfinals Friday at 12:15 p.m. in Champaign's Assembly Hall.

"I had something to prove tonight," said McKinney. "Their coach (Larry Jenkins) said that I couldn't shoot and their main concern was to stop Cuonzo. So I went out and showed those guys that Chris McKinney is a big-game player."

But McKinney was almost the goat. With four seconds left in regulation and the Tigers leading 44-43, McKinney fouled Jamie Reid while chasing a loose ball. Following a Lincoln timeout, Reid hit the front end of the one-and-one to tie the game, but missed his second attempt. Martin cleared the rebound and sent the game into overtime.

"I was really worried there for a while," said McKinney. "I felt terrible deep down inside because I cost us the game and chances to reach the state tournament. But when he missed that second shot (Marion) gave us a second chance and we wouldn't be denied."

"I just told Chris to forget about it," said Martin. "He made an aggressive play and it cost him. But I was confident we'd win the game because we had the inner drive to reach Champaign."

McKinney made it wouldn't slip away by hitting the go-ahead basket in the extra session. In all, McKinney scored five points in the overtime. Trailing 48-44 with 29 seconds left, Marion's Clint Smothers (12 points) drilled a three-pointer which cut the lead to one. But free throws by Maurice Horton and Artagus Williams sealed the verdict.

"Chris redeemed himself," said Martin. "Despite my scoring drought, I knew Chris could pull us through."

Lincoln's trip to Champaign was almost put on hold by a determined Marion team. The Wildcats (20-11) found ways of countering Lincoln's every move. There were 10 ties and eight lead changes. The contest seesawed back-and-forth in the first half with neither team leading by more than four points. Finally Reid hit a three-pointer at the halftime buzzer to give Marion a 24-23 lead.

But the Tigers came out with fire in their eyes in the third quarter and outscored the Wildcats 14-5 to take a 37-29 lead into the final period. Defense was the key as the Tigers kept Marion scoreless for nearly seven minutes.

But the Wildcats came charged. (See LINCOLN, Page 3B)

ARTAGUS WILLIAMS of East St. Louis Lincoln will be making his second trip to Champaign for the state basketball tournament. Williams was on the East St. Louis Assumption team that made the Class A quarterfinals in 1989.

Yates looks ahead without bitterness

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — There is no more bitterness. No more sour grapes. It's time to look ahead for Ron Yates.

Yates, who was relieved of his duties as the Warrior football coach on Jan. 23, is still undecided about where he will be next school year. But, as one might expect from someone who's given his entire adult life to Warrior football, he's ready to back the new coach.

"I hope he knows what he's getting into," said Yates. "There are some things this program needs to become more successful, but I want to leave on a positive note. I'll be behind the new coach."

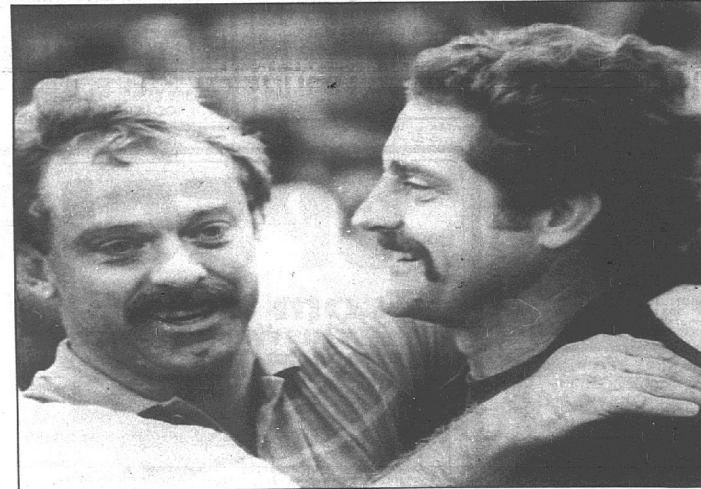

Although it's an unlikely scenario, Yates didn't rule out the possibility of being an assistant to the new coach, who could be named as early as March 27.

"It depends on who the new coach is," said Yates. "And I don't know if the board would want that if they didn't want me as the head coach. But those will still be my boys out there for a couple years."

One of those boys is literally his boy, Damon Yates will be a junior this year. That's one reason Yates isn't anxious to leave the community, although it's possible.

"If I could find something by mid-summer, that would give Damon two years at a new

Seven finalists in line for GCHS football job

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The District 9 school board has a list of seven finalists to be interviewed for the head football coaching job at the high school.

Superintendent Gib Walmsey said Wednesday that the list had been pared down from 19 applicants at Tuesday's board meeting.

"We'll begin the interview process next week and would like to be in a position to get something done at the next regular board meeting (March 27)," Walmsey said.

There were a large number of quality applicants.

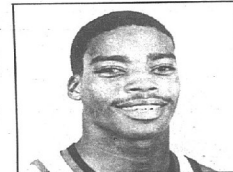

The status of the assistant football coaches is in limbo until the new coach is hired.

The board also approved the beginning of a seventh grade football program next fall. Two additional coaches will have to be hired.

"Something we're going to do which should help is we're requiring the junior high coaches to report to fall practice with the varsity to become familiar with what the varsity coach is doing," said Walmsey. "I've been here 28 years and I don't remember us having a seventh grade football program. That should help."

Walmsey said the interview board for the varsity coaching position will be made up of him, administrative assistant Mike Sikora, athletic director Greg Patton, assistant AD Tom Wyroske, junior high coach John Sikora and any board members who would like to participate.

Two former Red Devil players going to NCAA's 'big dance'

College basketball's most exciting three weeks started late this morning. And a pair of former Venice High School players will be a part of the scene.

Jesse Hall, one of the best high school players in the area over the past many years, is a reserve for the Michigan State Spartans. MSU was the surprise winner of the Big Ten Conference this season with a 26-5 overall record.

Hall, a 6-3 junior guard who led the Red Devils to the state championship in 1987, hasn't seen much playing time with the Spartans, who play Murray State (21-8) in the Southeast Regional today at 1:30 p.m. in Knoxville, Tenn. Michigan State is the No. 1 seed in the Southeast Regional while Murray State, winners of the Ohio Valley Conference, are the No. 16 seed.

The Michigan State made it to the NIT semifinals last year, but behind the play of junior guard Steve Smith made it to the top of the Big 10 this season. The Spartans won the NCAA in 1979 behind Magic Johnson.

Dale Turner, a junior on the Venice state championship team, is the starting point guard as a sophomore for the Northern Iowa Panthers. Turner, the winner of the Association of Mid-Continent Universities, UNI received the No. 14 seed in the Southeast Regional and will take on No. 3 seed Missouri (26-5) at 11 a.m. Friday in Richmond, Va. Missouri won the regular-season Big 8 championship and was No. 1 in the country until losing three of their last four.

It's the first NCAA Tournament appearance ever for UNI, coached by former Ohio State coach Eldon Miller. Turner is averaging 10 points and 4.6 assists for the Panthers. Turner should spend a lot of time guarding Anthony Peeler, the Tigers' outstanding sophomore guard. Missouri coach Norm Stewart coached at Northern Iowa in the early 1960s.

Second-round games will be played over the weekend. Regional finals are next weekend, with the Final Four set for March 31-April 2 in Denver.

Rebuilding Trojanettes count on tradition

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

MADISON — The Trojanettes are looking at a rebuilding season this spring.

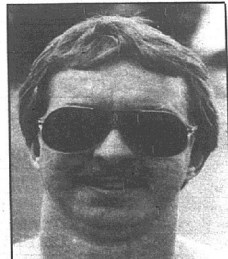

Madison, which qualified four relay teams and three individuals in open events for the state tournament last spring, returned only two individuals from that team.

Despite youth and inexperience, coach Gene Briggs feels the school's tradition will benefit the Trojanettes as the current season progresses. The first meet is Saturday when Madison runs in the Charleston Indoor Invitational at 9 a.m.

"This will definitely be a rebuilding year for our girls," said Briggs. "But we have a solid nucleus of juniors that should provide leadership for our young girls and improve our team as the season moves along."

Juniors Tramia Burt and Marvis Jones are the only returning individuals with state experience. Burt was a member of the relay team that went to state in the 400 meters, 800 meters, 900 medley and 1600 meters. Jones qualified in the shot put event with a throw of 34-6.

Briggs will be looking to build

Gene Briggs
... rebuilding

the foundation of this year's team around those girls.

"Tramia is a hard worker in practice," said Briggs. "She possesses leadership qualities. She just needs to gain confidence in herself and prove herself to the other girls. Once her efforts begin to rub off on the other kids everything else should fall into place.

"And Tramia has really impressed me in practice so far. She's really pushing herself. Marvis is a similar individual. She's very strong and her chances of qualifying for the state tournament again are very realistic."

"But unlike Tramia, Marvis has a couple of veterans working with her in the field events. Arlon Dickson and Torvonne Russell are experienced in the field events and they should provide some support for Marvis." Williams, both juniors, will handle the middle distance events, while Whitcomb can also be counted on in the hurdles. Another er junior, Theresa Hampt, will also be a middle distance runner. The only senior on the team, Brandi Woods, will run middle distance and the distance events.

"We've got some older kids that could pick up the slack for us early in the season," said Briggs. "These girls are all fine athletes, but they need to get into shape to enhance their performance. But the girls know that hard work is the best way to produce positive results. They're willing to make the sacrifices to accomplish those results."

Track doesn't attract the average athlete like the glamour sports tend to. So the beginning of every season becomes a guessing game for the coaches. As of now, the Trojanettes could receive some additional support from a pair of seniors Briggs wouldn't name who excelled in the hurdles last season.

"Those girls may come out," he said. "But it's definitely a guessing game at the beginning of the season. Some kids just don't like to put in all the work that's required of them in track. So you must find ways to work around those shortcomings. But

Hendrickson, J. Hogan help Cougars open with sweep

By Al Barnes

Correspondent
EDWARDSVILLE — A Granite City connection helped the SIUE baseball team get the 1990 season off on the right foot Saturday.

Darin Hendrickson picked up a save and Jamie Hogan had a couple of key hits as the Cougars swept a double-header from Southwest (Mo.) Baptist, 9-2 and 5-4, at Roy R. Lee Field, SIUE takes a 2-0 record on its two-week spring break trip to Savannah, Ga.

Hendrickson came on in the fifth inning of the nightcap and got the save for Darren Brooks. The ex-warrior righthander gave up two runs in the seventh, but retired the final two batters to notch the save.

Jamie Hogan doubled home Tim Wargo in the fifth inning for the Cougars' final run of the game, which proved to be the winner. Hogan also had a hit in the first game and played well at second base.

Southwest Baptist fell to 1-9 on the season, but it had played almost all Division I schools until Saturday.

Bill Luther of Cahokia, the Cougars' leading hitter last year, picked up where he left off, collecting back-to-back doubles in the opener and an RBI single in the nightcap.

Rich Miner of Springfield, who pitched for the Granite City Miners last summer, finished up the first game in relief of winning pitcher Tim Bateman of Bethalto.

It's hard to imagine the weather being any better in Georgia than it was Saturday. The Cougars begin the trip with two games this Saturday. They face Sacred Heart College at 10 a.m. and Adelphi (N.Y.) University at 1:30 p.m. SIUE returns home for a double-header against Southern Indiana on March 28.

"school," Yates said. "But I don't think I'd want him somewhere for just one year."

Yates' other son, Darryn, was a team captain last year and will attend Illinois State University in the fall. His wife, Carolyn, is a teacher at Grigsby Junior High School.

"All the bitterness is in the background," said Yates. "One thing that really put it in perspective was that the week they posted my job my father-in-law (Lacey Randolph) was diagnosed with cancer in the facial area. It's going to be rough for him. But that helped make me realize that football isn't so important."

Football has been important to Yates in Granite City all his life. He was a long-time assistant before taking over the top spot in 1964. He went 20-29 in six years, not including strike games. The highlight was 1966, when the Warriors were 8-3, ended East St. Louis' 44-game winning streak and won their first Southwestern Conference title in 40 years. Granite City won a first-round playoff game 28-22 at Quincy before losing a 20-0 rematch to the Flyers at Memorial Stadium in the second round.

"I remember thinking that that might be my career season," said Yates. "The Hoggans (Tim and Jamie) were great, and it was just a smart group of football players who wanted to win."

The red-letter date in Yates' career was Oct. 4, 1986, when the Warriors beat East St. Louis 17-14 at Memorial Stadium to hand the Flyers their first loss in almost four years.

"I remember eating breakfast at IHOP with (assistants) Bryan Wilkinson and Bob Stegemeier," Yates said. "I told them I really thought we could win. They just said to wait and see what happened."

(Flyer coach) Bob Shannon was out on the field at 7 that morning. It had rained and he was worried about how soggy the field was.

The wet field helped even up the quickness factor, but the Warriors earned the victory all the way before a frenzied capacity crowd.

Now it's on to the future. "I've got some calls out," said Yates. "It would be tough to relocate. I would have been willing to give several more years to this program."

"But I appreciate all the support. I want to thank all the people who called, wrote letters and spoke to me. That makes me feel good. And I thank all the boys who played for me through the years. For the most part they were all super kids."

Yates drew up a list of things he feels the football program needs to be more successful. For all sports, he feels a larger, isolated weight room, a full-time trainer and a local radio station to broadcast away games back to Granite City would help.

Specifically for football, he thinks the institution of a seventh grade football program and a flag or touch football program in the park district would be a big help. At Tuesday's board meeting, the school board approved a plan to begin seventh grade football next fall.

"And I think Babe Champion is working to get some sort of football program going in the park," said Yates.

Other than that, Yates felt the program obviously needed more quickness and bigger linemen.

"I don't know what you can do about that," he said. "Soccer isn't an excuse. But I would like to see football succeed here."

ing back in the final period and sent the game to overtime.

"Marion played a very good game," said Lincoln coach Benjie Lewis. "They did an excellent job of double- and triple-teaming Cuozzo in the lane. So it was up to our other people to get the job done. The key was being patient."

"Marion was very patient and did a good job of keeping the game close. They almost pulled it out. They showed us the type of team they were with their comeback in the final period. It was a hard-fought victory. Marion made us earn it."

"Our goal was to reach the state tournament. We knew at the beginning of the year that we weren't the best team in the area. But we had the people to mold together a team. We figured that if we couldn't win the state title, we could at least get big to Champaign."

"We used one of our nine lives tonight," said McKimney. "But it's so sweet to go to the state tournament. Our tradition of the last four years has really shown up in our last four games. We know what's at stake and we just buckle down and play harder down the stretch. It's just become our nature at tournament time."

NOTES: Lincoln has now won 29 post-season games in a row. Their last tournament loss was in the 1986 super-sectional, one if those girls come out they will definitely give us a shot in the arm.

"That's why we're depending on a lot of first-year girls to round out our team. I've got four sophomores (Connie Jones, Dawn Shelby, Michelle Thomas and Lori Keller) who could step to the forefront right away. Jones and Shelby could be good sprinters for us, while Thomas could be a tough distance and middle distance runner. Keller is versatile and will handle the sprints, middle distance running and the high jump. She'll score some points for us."

"The remainder of our team is made up of freshmen. We must rely on our youth to carry some of the burden this year. Some may think this is a little unfair, but these girls will have to face the competition sometime. Why not right away?"

"The fortunate thing is the balance of our team. We've got talent at all levels and that should help us reach our goal of qualifying a relay team for the state tournament. It's been a tradition at this school to have strong relay teams. Despite our youth, this year shouldn't be an exception."

"I'm not saying we're guaranteed a spot, but I'm not saying that we're out of it either. We'll work hard towards our goal and try to uphold our tradition."

Fuel injection is a great idea. The only problem with it is deposits can build up inside the fuel injectors. So engines run rough, hesitate and stall. A Champion Fuel System Tune-Up cleans these power-robbing deposits. It's like a transfusion of performance.

No enthusiasm for state tax boost proposal

By Dennis McMurray
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James Thompson on March 7 proposed higher taxes on tobacco and phone calls and increased fees for dumping garbage.

In presenting his 14th and final budget proposal, Thompson acknowledged legislators may be reluctant to raise taxes after increasing the income tax, cigarette tax and gasoline tax last year. But he argued the new proposals were reasonable and would finance needed programs.

The response to his tax ideas generally was unenthusiastic. Thompson urged a substantial funding increase in the environmental area, including a $500 million state program for building incinerators and landfills.

For the second year in a row, Thompson urged a major increase to fight drug abuse.

He also proposed that companies pay an additional unemployment insurance tax of up to $9 per employee and suggested a two-month tax amnesty program this fall that could bring in $70 million in overdue taxes.

The general revenue fund budget, from which most state programs are financed, would go up by $523 million, or 4.2 percent, to a total of $12.9 billion for the fiscal year starting July 1.

However, $300 million of that increase would require legislative approval for higher tobacco and telephone taxes, the amnesty program and a change in liquor sales taxes.

If the Legislature rejects those proposals, Thompson vowed to cut the budget by that amount.

The state's general revenue fund for the current fiscal year grew by about $1.2 billion, or about 10 percent, last year because of tax increases.

Thompson wants the legislature to raise the 5 percent state excise tax on telephone calls to 8 percent, bringing in an estimated additional $135 million a year.

His budget plan also assumes the bulk rate tax, which went from 20 cents to 30 cents a pack last year, would be hiked another 8 cents. He also wants a 20 percent tax at the wholesale level on cigars and on pipe and chewing tobacco. The combined yield from the tobacco taxes would be an estimated $80 million a year.

Thompson said $70 million could be raised through an amnesty program in September and October; delinquent taxpayers would be forgiven penalties and half the interest charges in exchange for paying up.

Another $15 million would be raised by requiring liquor wholesalers to prepay a state tax.

To help pay for state unemployment office operations, the governor is seeking to raise the unemployment insurance tax by a maximum of $9 per employee annually. He noted that employers would still get an average reduction of $10 an employee later this year because of a benefit fund surplus.

Doroghazi named to staff

Dr. Paul Doroghazi, physician and surgeon, has been named to the active medical staff of Anderson Hospital in Maryville. Doroghazi practices at 2120 Madison Ave. in Granite City, and lives in Edwardsville with his wife and three children. He is also on the medical staff of St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City. He specializes in general surgery and is board certified. He is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons. Doroghazi is a graduate of the University of Chicago Medical School and holds an undergraduate degree from the University of Illinois. He is a member of the American Medical Association and the Madison County Medical Society. He is a member of the Boy Scouts of America, Cahokia Mounds Council, the Tri-Cities Area United Way and the Granite City Rotary Club. Doroghazi also serves as superintendent of Christian education for the Covenant Reformed Presbyterian Church in Edwardsville.

Clayco working on new caster

A $3 million mechanical project has been awarded to Clayco Construction's Special Projects Division by Granite City Steel. Don Wright, vice president of Clayco, said work has begun on the installation of a continuous casting unit at the plant, which is a division of National Steel Corp.

The caster, once installed, will produce 66 inches of steel per minute between 35 and 80 inches wide and nearly nine inches thick. Continuous casting is an energy-efficient process of producing high-quality steel in less time than the conventional method of pouring steel into molds. When the installation is completed later this year, the Granite City plant will be the first in the United States to produce all of its steel through continuous casting.

The 400-ton-capacity turret feed caster will require over 40,000 manhours to install and will handle nearly two million tons per year at capacity. This project involves the millwright and ironworker trades as well as others.

The contract is considered a coup for Clayco's Special Projects Division, which competed with five other companies to get the job. Clayco is performing the work for the prime contractor, Davy McKee Corp., headquartered in Britain.

The Special Projects Division of Clayco Construction Co. specializes in heavy industrial construction. Work includes specialized welding, intricate equipment maintenance and repair, emergency projects, mechanical work and comprehensive millwright and boilermaker equipment service and installation.

The division's client list is made up of Illinois companies such as Jefferson Smurfit's Alton Box Division, Olin Corp. in East Alton, Air Products in Granite City and Big River Zinc in Sauget. The division has also completed special projects in Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana.

Olin building training center

Olin Corp. has announced plans for construction of a $1 million, 9,000-square-foot, single-story building at East Alton to be used for training of company employees. Completion of the building is expected by late summer.

The new "Olin Center for Excellence" will be located on Olin property east of Powder Mill Road just south of the Illinois 140 intersection. It will be across Powder Mill Road from the entrance to the company's Westerner Club.

The interior of the new building will be divided into several classrooms and meeting areas equipped with the latest employee training and educational aids. There also will be offices for the personnel staffing the facility.

"The new facility is another step in Olin's continuing commitment to total quality management, a process that is being pursued throughout Olin in order to meet the expectations of internal and external customers 100 percent of the time," said Donald W. Griffin, president of the company's Defense Systems Group and executive vice president of the corporation.

"The new East Alton facility will be used as a corporate-wide resource center in Olin's drive for quality, with employees from other company locations as well as Olin Brass and Defense Systems Group employees at East Alton making use of the facility," Griffin said.

Pair return from convention

David and Jeri Copper have just returned from the Ceramic Art Federation International convention in Orlando, Fla., held Feb. 21-25.

Some of the topics covered were the new craft labeling laws and how each studio must comply. They also attended the Products on Parade luncheon and a porcelain show.

Taracorp:

Battling the negative image

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Taracorp Industries, located at 16th Street and Cleveland Boulevard, thinks it has been getting a lot of bad press it doesn't deserve.

The reason for the negative image is the presence on its property of a 250,000-ton pile of lead slag and old battery casings.

The pile, which may be cleaned up or covered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, was put there by NL Industries, which formerly owned the site, Taracorp officials say.

The pile — and the lead pollution in residential neighborhoods around the plant — is the result of smelting operations that went on for many decades.

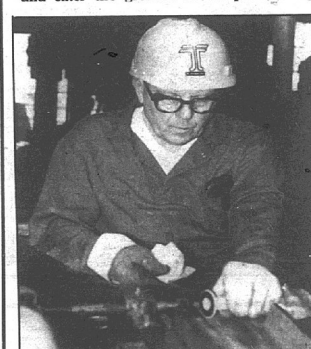

Taracorp, which bought the plant from NL in 1979, does no smelting. Its operations are limited to melting already refined metals, mostly lead.

Among the products the privately owned company produces are lead shot for skeet and trap shooting, lead solder, lead-free solder, waterproof lead pipes for electrical conduit and lead shielding for X-ray machines and nuclear-powered naval vessels.

Tony Lindsay, general manager of Taracorp's Granite City plant, said it is one of three owned by the company. The other two plants are in Winston-Salem, N.C., and Atlanta.

The local plant has about 100 workers on two shifts. It is a union plant, represented by Steelworkers Local 6498.

When you leave the office on 16th Street and enter the grounds of the plant, a sign

JOE GRESHAM spools lead-free solder used in pipes that carry drinking water.

MOLTEN LEAD droplets rain from this sieve, falling 12 stories and ending up as lead pellets for shotgun shells.

TARACORP WORKERS cast and package tin ingots for shipping to an aluminum can manufacturer that will use them for soldering cans.

proclaims, "Welcome to the nation's cleanest lead plant."

Lindsay said, "It's self-proclaimed. We haven't been told that by any government body. But the nature of a lead plant is that they are, almost by definition, dirty. This one is not."

The claim seems justified. The buildings and grounds are scrupulously clean, and elaborate precautions are taken to protect the workers from taking lead into their bodies, including the use of masks and ventilators.

Most of the technology at the plant is ancient. The plant's biggest product is lead shot, and the technology for it dates back to the Civil War, Lindsay said. More on the shot technology in a bit.

The laboratory, on the other hand, is quite modern. "The lab is really the heart of the operation," Lindsay said. Sample batches of metal are tested for impurities before and after processing.

"We do a lot of work for the government and government subcontractors," Lindsay said. The standards are stringent.

Technician Carolyn Dunham showed off the lab's most impressive piece of equipment — an atomic absorption photometer. Metal samples are put in an acid solution, burned at high temperatures and the wavelength of the flames analyzed to determine the purity of the sample. The data show up on a computer screen.

On the other end of the technological spectrum is the shot tower. Six stories up, lead is heated to 600 degrees Fahrenheit. The melted lead is funneled into a sort of large skillet with hundreds of tiny holes. The skillets have different sized holes, depending on what size shot is being made that day. Lindsay said each skillet costs about $1,800.

The molten lead drips through the holes and falls 12 stories, six of which are underground.

By the time it hits several feet of water at the bottom of the tower, it has solidified into more or less perfect little globes.

It is carried by conveyor back up above ground and set to rolling down a series of three ramps tilted at about 5 degrees. Each ramp is interrupted by five three-inch gaps.

Shot that isn't perfectly round rolls slower than round shot and can't make the jump. If an individual shot makes all 15 jumps, it is presumed to be round enough. Those that fall through the gaps are then carried back automatically to the top of the tower to be remelted.

The shot that passes this quality control for roundness is funneled into a hopper, through which it falls into a series of 11 rotating tubes, parallel to the ground. The tubes have thousands of little holes in them.

An individual shot will fall through each tube in succession until it reaches one through which it cannot pass. The piece of shot has proved it is the right size.

The operation can be set up to select which tube will be automatically emptying the desired size of shot. The wrong sizes are routed into a conveyor for transport back to the melting pot at the top of the tower.

The right sizes are packaged into 25-lb. cloth sacks, for eventual sale to sportsmen who reload their own cartridges.

The plant ships more than 1,000 tons of shot a month. The premiere brand is Lawrence Brand No. 7½. Lindsay said it is "better, more expensive" than any other shot made anywhere.

"The black label is kind of like Jack Daniels whiskey," he said, meaning that it is a mark of quality.

30 YEARS OF SERVICE: William McGowan, right, a 30-year employee of the U.S. Postal Service in Granite City, is presented a certificate of appreciation by Granite City Postmaster Charles Parkinson. The presentation was made on March 2, the effective date of McGowan's retirement. McGowan was a former letter carrier and had most recently worked in the local office as a distribution clerk.

WORK UNDER WAY: A groundbreaking is held for a new medical office building on the Edgewood campus in Edwardsville. Construction of the 3,200-square-foot building is to be completed by June 30, weather permitting. It will house two physician offices, a waiting room and a business office, and will be distant enough to protect the confidentiality of Edgewood (in background) chemical dependency patients. Both are owned and operated by St. Elizabeth Medical Center of Granite City. Among officials on hand for the ceremony were (left to right): Leo Wolf, L. Wolf Construction; Martha Hogan, SEMC vice president of nursing; Dr. Kevin Konzen and Dr. Lawrence Harmon, both on staff at SEMC; John Fruit, SEMC board member; Dennis De Teye, mayor of Edwardsville; Leo Konzen, SEMC board member; Dr. Leo Sachar, vice president of medical affairs at SEMC; and Ted Ellerman, SEMC president and chief executive officer.

Fox Network cutting into realm of Big 3

These are not great times for executives at the three major television networks.

They have enough to worry about with competition from cable television, complaints about sex and violence, and incidents like the one created by alleged racist remarks by CBS-TV commentator Andy Rooney.

Now comes the Fox Network—KNDL-TV (Channel 30) locally—stealing serious chunks of viewers.

Maybe everyone is not aware of it, but enough people are watching Fox to make it a genuine force in the ratings. On March 11, for example, two of Fox's most popular shows had audiences comparable to that of other networks.

The Nielsen ratings for March 11—the percentage of television sets in the market tuned in to a particular program—showed the following:

"In the 7:30 p.m. slot, KTVI-TV (Channel 2) had a 14 share for "Elvis"; KNDL-TV (Channel 4) drew a 16 for "Murder, She Wrote"; KSDK-TV (Channel 5) had a 12 for "Magical World of Disney"; KPLR-TV (Channel 11) had a 5 for the Blues-Blackhawks hockey game; and Channel 30 had 14 for "The Simpsons."

"At 8 p.m., Channel 2 had a 12 for "Women of Brewster Place"; Channel 4 had a 19 for "People's Awards"; Channel 5 had a 16 for "Perry Mason"; Channel 11's continuation of the Blues game drew a 9; and Channel 30 had a 12 for "Married with Children."

Based on experience and observation, it is a fair guess that many of those Fox viewers are precisely the kind a lot of advertisers are looking for—young and upscale. What exactly are those Fox programs that a lot of people have never even heard of, let alone watched?

Well, your kids may know about "The Simpsons." The Simpsons are kind of an animated cartoon of "Roseanne"—only more so. On the night in question, the program featured the family (two obnoxious parents, three obnoxious children) visiting the family therapist. The therapist—a real sleazebag—put the family members, including the infant, in special electric chairs that allowed them to deliver electric shocks to each other when behavior offended them.

The vision of an infant getting deliberate electric shocks from her parents and the parents themselves being shocked and shocking each other was a little kinky for me, but I know some perfectly rational folks who thought it was awful funny. Maybe June and Ward Cleaver wouldn't have enjoyed the moment, but as satire, it was interesting.

"Married with Children" is slightly more conventional.

Ian MacBryde

Slightly. There's a little of "Soap" in it, but not as clever. There's some sexual references and not one likable character in the program. But it's funny.

The common thread in the program seems to be that the family members treat each other more like real people than most of the incredibly happy family members on television. Of course, one would hope people in real-life have some common sense, some love, with the sarcasm and constant battling.

But, for the people who like the programming—particularly young people—maybe it's a way of thumbing their nose at society's wishful stereotype of family life.

On the other hand, I find it painful to watch people constantly at each others' throats. Some observations, based on the ratings: If they are typical of the national picture, CBS (Channel 4) must be frantic over its slim lead at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. That is about the only time when that network could be in a good shape.

"Murder, She Wrote" attracted lots of people even if the audience did tend to be somewhat older. Of course, the network rallied later with another of those incredibly prolific award shows, but the network can't do that every week. Or maybe it will.

Actually, you would have thought that "Murder, She Wrote" would be commanding the older audience while everyone else fought it out with programming apparently geared to the young at heart. Maybe "Elvis" attracts a part of that older set. Did you think you'd ever see that?

At 8 p.m. the Fox audience was down a bit but still respectable and comparable to the number of people watching Channel 2.

It is true that some of the Big Three network programs are re-runs. But, if Fox can put together respectable numbers like those elsewhere in the viewing week, it is going to make serious inroads into the advertising revenue that is available to broadcast networks.

The good news is that network programming might get better. The bad news is that network executives probably just will get more frantic and give even less time to programming projects that might develop and more time to formulas that are tired, true—and stale.

'Camille' shows life of tormented artist

Isabelle Adjani gives what could be the signature performance of her career in "Camille Claudel" (*), a passionate, lavishly photographed story of a gifted sculptress who for 15 years was the mistress and inspiration of the great artist Auguste Rodin.

Movie audiences on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean first discovered Adjani in 1975 when she starred in Francois Truffaut's "The Story of Adele H." Adjani was 19, and the role earned her an Oscar nomination. Recently she earned her second "Best Actress" nomination for "Camille Claudel."

The film was directed by the internationally renowned cinematographer Bruno Nuytten, who also was co-author of the screenplay, which is based on a biography written by Reine-Marie Paris, Claudel's grandniece.

"Camille Claudel" follows the story of Claudel for a protracted period (hence, the two hour and minute running time), striking up the account when Claudel first arrives in Paris at the age of 20. She is full of vitality yet uncommonly disciplined too, an odd combination for a young lady of her age and talent.

Through a series of events that dramatically outline the torment and the treasure of the creative soul, "Camille Claudel" paints the bitter-sweet story of its spirited heroine as she falls in love with Rodin and becomes his paramour and apprentice, only to have him eventually cast her off after their lengthy liaison in favor of his original lover.

Claudel rapidly deteriorates both physically and spiritually after the end of the affair in a decline that leads her to a 30-year commitment in an insane asylum.

French star Gerard Depardieu is focused and electrifying as Rodin. Depardieu innately captures the classic artist's overt ambition and striving for some kind of immortality through his work. Veteran European performers Alain Cuny and Madeleine Robinson are excellent as Claudel's middle-class parents, who struggle to assist their unmanageable daughter.

In French with English subtitles, "Camille Claudel" is a film of supreme depth, both in performance and look. The camera work in this film is like a surgeon's scalpel, dissecting and probing the sinew of this sweeping story of love and creation. Adjani loses herself brilliantly in the character of Claudel.

The film has an emotional boldness the likes of which you probably never have witnessed in another motion picture.

Rated R (love scenes). Running time: 149 minutes. Critic's rating based on four stars.

Outspoken Isabelle Adjani returns to screen

By Harry Hamm
Staff writer

American movie audiences have not seen a lot of French actress Isabelle Adjani, who has the starring role in the new film "Camille Claudel."

Adjani, the 34-year-old daughter of a German mother and an Algerian father, played in one of 1987's most heralded box-office flops, "Ishtar." Her only other performance in an American-made film was in "The Driver" in 1978.

"I took 'Ishtar' in the right spirit," Adjani said. "Dustin (Hoffman) said we should all look back on it and consider it just a nice excuse for a long holiday in Morocco."

Adjani will not have to make up any philosophical excuses about "Camille Claudel," for which she has earned her second Oscar nomination as Best Actress. Her first nomination was in 1975 for her work in "The Story of Adele H.," for which she won the Caesar, the French equivalent of an Oscar.

"Camille Claudel" also was awarded a Caesar for Best Picture. The film's screenplay is based on a biography about Claudel written by her grandniece. Adjani developed and co-produced the project under the banner of her own production company, Lith production.

"Performers producing their own films is nothing new in America, but in France it's viewed as egotistical," she said. "Frankly, that doesn't bother me. I think France can be pretty egotistical as a country about nearly everything, especially if it isn't French. Just look at their rigid immigration policies. This place is not exactly a haven for the oppressed."

"Claudel is a victim of oppression herself. That's why I wanted to do the film. She was a great artist in her own right, but because she was (Auguste) Rodin's mistress, she is nearly forgotten. I think she is too important a woman not to do a movie about her. It is appalling that she is not recognized. I'm hoping this film will help change that injustice."

Adjani has been a victim of oppression of another type. She is viewed as a difficult performer, one with very vocal opinions about the people with whom she has worked. She has a cadre of people in the film business on the Continent who are vocal in their opposition toward her. Adjani feels it was this group that started the rumor in 1987 that she was dying of AIDS.

"I kept silent," Adjani said. "But when we went into pre-production for 'Camille Claudel,' the insurance companies started to balk because of the rumors. Finally, I went public and said how ridiculous it all was. I didn't know really who started it and exactly why, but it was a lie. I said I thought it was offensive to all the people who were really ill with the disease, that so much should be given to someone on the basis of unsubstantiated rumors."

"It finally stopped, but it was a very difficult time for me."

Adjani lives in a luxurious, spacious but sparsely furnished duplex on the Left Bank in Paris. Although she never has married, Adjani does have a 10-year-old son whose father is cinematographer and "Camille Claudel" director Bruno Nuytten, whom she met 11 years ago on the set of a film he was directing called "Barocco."

"Bruno is my favorite type of director," Adjani said. "It is such a relief to work with him because he doesn't try to manipulate you. Too many directors try to victimize you."

ISABELLE ADJANI'S performance in "Camille Claudel" is being considered for an Oscar.

Of all the directors she has worked with, Adjani said Francois Truffaut was the best.

"He had a skill for understanding how tricks, incidents and accidents can be the very thing that makes a motion picture work," Adjani said. "He taught me as well as directed me. He was smooth and had a purity that I think sprang from his love of the film."

"Thinking about working with him is a very comforting thought."

For me, I wish it were possible to work with him just one more time, only so that he could know that I have learned what he tried to teach me.

While the members of the Academy are deciding on her role at Oscar (for March 23), Adjani is spending her time talking about "Camille Claudel," reading and doing some travels. Adjani plans to travel in Hollywood for the award ceremony.
